

Living Memorial

We must never forget the victims

The digital Living Memorial will honor the life of each person killed in the December 21, 1988, terrorist attack against America.

The Living Memorial is a dynamic site that will grow as more loved ones contribute images, stories, memories, and tributes. It is designed to live in perpetuity and invites wide continued input.

The Living Memorial will feature:

- Gallery page of full-color photographs of the 270 victims who died in the attack.
- Individual victims' memorial page, where loved ones are invited to share images, memories, write messages, and contribute audio, video, photographs, and other tokens of memory.

John Binning Cummock

Marketing Executive

May 31, 1950 - December 21, 1988 (Age: 38)

John was a bright, gregarious, loving, kind, and gentle man of Scottish descent. He died and came to rest in Tundergarth, Scotland, only miles away from where his forefathers originated.

Born in Utah, raised in California, and educated at Brigham Young University with an MBA from the University of Utah, he resided prior to his death with his wife and three children in Coral Gables, Florida. Beloved husband of M. Victoria Diaz Bolton and devoted father to Christopher, 6 years old; Matthew, 4 years old; and Ashley, 3 years old. He was also survived by his parents, John and Beverly Cummock, his sisters Debbie and Dana, and his half-brother Robert.

Memory from Christopher John Cummock

I remember my father as a kind, gentle soul who was always welcoming and fun to visit. My fondest memory of him was when I used to build him small cars for him in a garage without even know I was building him and my Aunt Vicki and was worried that I wouldn't have enough time to get the cars back when getting back home that evening. Uncle John helped me build the cars at his house. We collected all sorts of materials and put the cars together that afternoon.
