Dryfesdale Church History

The Dryfesdale Parish Church has been an integral part of the Lockerbie community for centuries. Its history goes back to 1116 in Royal documents. Later documents of the Inquisition of King David indicate that it was the property of the episcopate of Glasgow.

1170–1186 Dryfesdale Church is confirmed as a Roman Catholic episcopate of Glasgow by the Bulls of Pope Alexander, Pope Lucius, and Pope Urban. Built on the shore of the Dryfe River, the early structure likely consisted of a plain four wall building with an altar, wooden cross, and bell. The church was dedicated to St. Cuthbert. Burial ground was eventually added.

1670 & 1757 Church was swept away by Dryfe River flooding and rebuilt on higher ground at Kirkhill only to be swept away again by the river.

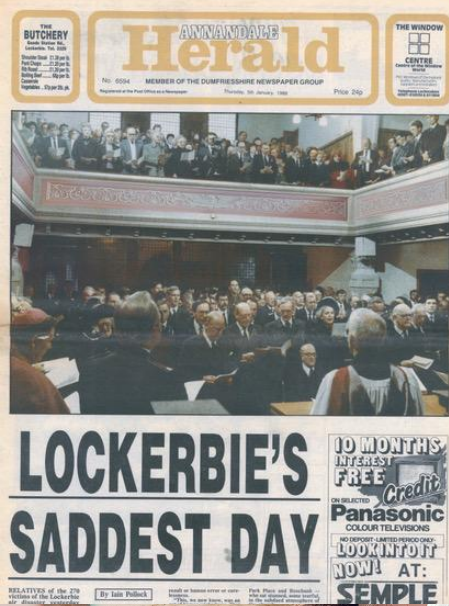

1757 Barn style whitewashed church built on current High Street site.

1808–1830 Congregation grew so much that the church was expanded twice, allowing for an additional 500 seats.

1896 Church demolished to make way for a new church designed by architect Frank J. C. Caruthers. The foundation stone of the fourth Dryfesdale Church was laid on July 11. The new structure, paid for by its congregation, the Baird trust, and other congregations was £4,575.

For over 125 years the Drydesdale church building has remained one of Lockerbie's most revered iconic community structures.

Dryfesdale Church History

1905 A spectacular church organ was added by Fosters and Andrews of Hull. For decades Dryfesdale Church thrived as a Church of Scotland and was one of Lockerbie's significant ecclesiastical seats.

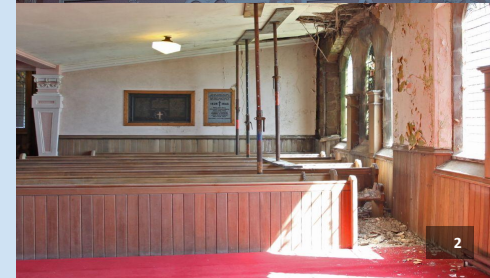

1922 Dryfesdale & Trinity Church parishes were combined due to reduction of parishioners.

1989, 4th January Official Memorial Service. Dignitaries joined to pay their respects with Lockerbie locals and victims relatives of the Pan Am flight 103 bombing, which killed 11 Lockerbie residents. Over 700 people attended with a massive overflow crowd extending down High Street.

2020 Dryfesdale & Trinity Church parishioner numbers decline to under 100.

2022 Church Services moved across the road to Dryfesdale Church Hall. Church building closed due to health and safety reasons. Building continues to fall into disrepair.

2025 After years of significant water egress through the church's flat lead roof, major structural damage occurs in stairwell, partially collapsing the south side ground floor and balcony ceilings, floor and walls.

Lockerbie Memorial Church Museum

May 2025 A group of Lockerbie community minded locals, including Vicky Jardine-Paterson, Graham & Nan Rew, COS Rev. Paul Read, Mike & Dianne Thomson, joined Victoria Cummock to rescue the iconic Dryfesdale & Trinity Church building, one of Lockerbie's most revered sites, from rapid escalating deterioration.

Utilising local conservation architects Doug Bodell, Andrew Clark, Robert Potter & Partners, we will restore the building to its former glory whilst upgrading and incorporating modern sustainable systems to bring the entire site into energy and disability compliance, including wheelchair access ramps, lifts and toilets.

Our plan is to create job opportunities and hire local tradesmen to craft a self-sustaining reverential place of pilgrimage with designated areas for ecclesiastical services, contemplation, education, and commemorative events.

Founding supporters include the Lockerbie Lord Lieutenant Fiona Armstrong, PA103LLF Board Members Carisa Harris Adamson & Jodi Flowers, Mike Jardine-Paterson, and James & Sarah Dawney of Biggar Museum. Our PA103LL-LMCM team includes John Palser, U.K. Development Manager and George Trudt, our Lockerbie Community Historian.

Lockerbie Memorial Church Museum

Fully restore the pulpit, organ, central sanctuary, and north sanctuary for community use including ecclesiastical services, celebratory and commemorative services, cultural events and interactive learning programmes. Add to the north sanctuary a small library of primary source documents with access to international primary source digital archives.

The Memorial Gallery

Repair and restore the entire infrastructure of the south sanctuary space and upper balcony ceilings, walls, windows, and floors.

Convert the entire ground floor south sanctuary space into a dedicated Memorial Gallery to include the current WW1 & WW2 Memorial Shrine Chapel, the six existing registered Imperial War Museum Memorials, and numerous other commemorative memorials. Add the Pan Am 103 Lockerbie 270 Victims Living Memorial commemorating the deadliest terrorist attack in United Kingdom history & United States history before September 11, 2001.

Upper Floor Museum Galleries

The Lockerbie Heritage Gallery exhibition space will advance the rich local heritage, history, culture, and traditions. Included will be artifacts from the area's pre-history and archaeology: excavations from the Neolithic period between 3950-3700 BC; excavations of a Bronze Age cemetery from 2140-1690 BC; digs at Torwood Ancient Roman encampment and Hadrian's wall beginning in 70 AD. Historical interactive exhibitions of Viking influence and fortresses from around 800-1050 AD and of sites that indicate a human presence in Lockerbie for at least 6000 years will be included. Other multimedia exhibitions will highlight the town's residents, architecture and exquisite countryside through the ages. These exhibitions will help visitors understand the relevance of Lockerbie's rich history to contemporary society.

The December 21, 1988, Gallery will consist of numerous exhibitions. The Attack Exhibition will feature an interactive timeline to teach about the events surrounding the terrorist bombing of Pan American Flight 103 and its aftermath. The bombing remains the deadliest terrorist attack in U.K. history and was the deadliest attack against the U.S. until the attacks in September 11, 2001. It created the largest crime scene in history at over 845 square miles. The Justice & Accountability Exhibition will tell the story of the largest ever global criminal investigation, which has spanned 37 years, that remains an active enquiry with ongoing Criminal Court proceeding in U.S. courts in Washington, DC.

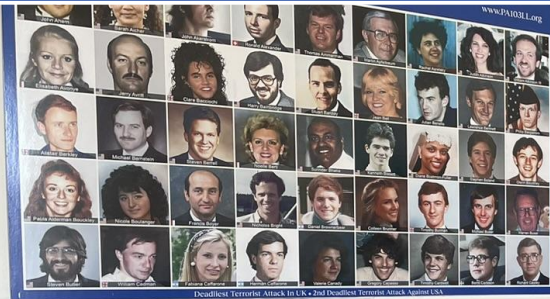

The Legacy Story Gallery will tell the extraordinary and inspirational stories of all impacted by the attack. The exhibition "Lockerbie—the Town that Taught the World a Lesson in Humanity" will focus on the townspeople of Lockerbie and acknowledge their incredible compassion and generosity. The Wall of Honour exhibition will pay homage to the thousands of first responders and volunteers whose heroic actions during the unprecedented recovery operations remain an inspiration. An exhibition on Accidental Activists will share the stories of victims' loved ones who channeled their grief and anger into political action. Included will be first-hand accounts of ordinary people united by tragedy which will provide impactful visitor learning experiences through inspiring true stories of hope, loss, sacrifice, resilience and advocacy.
